A North Main Street Property Holder's View of the Matter.

SOME STRONG ARGUMENTS GIVEN

Why the Council and the People Should Promptly Embrace the Opportunity Offered by the Street Railway Company-Council has Endeavored to Shirk a Plain Duty. An Appeal to the Common Sense of

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.
Sin:—The action of Council at its lust meeting, referring the Main street double trucks to the voters of the North End, appears to be a scheme on the part of the body mentioned to evade a responsibility properly belonging to it, At all events it is an admirable arrangement to defeat the object of getting the question on its merits before the people, and to defeat the proposition en-tirely. No course, hardly, could be adopted better suited to its opponents between Ninth and Tenth streets than the one submitted to the street railway company, and that these opponents exulted is not to be wondered at, regarded as it is by them as an indirect defeat of

It certainly must be apparent to the measure.

It certainly must be apparent to the most superficial observer that so long as the people of the North end living east of the line of lots fronting on the east side of Main street entertain the idea that the company can be forced to adopt the Market street route, they will oppose two tracks on Main street, not because two tracks will injure Main street, or that the people of Main street oppose it, but because they want it on Market street, and, dog in the manger like, if they cannot have it themselves like, if they cannot have it themselves no one else shall have it; hence the opposition. The question, therefore, on opposition. The question, therefore, on its merits, cannot be determined in the way proposed. Our Market and Coal street and National road friends have persistently asserted that the people of Main street do not want the double tracks. Two members of council from the First ward having property interests east of the line mentioned above, have stremously maintained this, both privately and in their official positions. The proposition is made to all those parties to give the Main street people the chance to settle this, as they are more directly affected by the alleged annoyance and inconvenience so loudly proclaimed by these gentlemen. When the proposition was offered, they did not dare consent to it, knowing upon what a poor foundation their utterances were built.

I give these gentlemen a pointer: One of the young men engaged in getting signers to the memorial favoring the grant for double tracks informed the writer that he found but four persons between the ravine and Alley 4, more than seven squares, on the west side of Main street, who declined to sign the paper. I am a little surprised that even this number could be found so falling to see their true interest; as to tacity oppose such a measure. This, to tacitly oppose such a measure. This, I think, will give you a good idea of the amount of opposition on Main street. And further, in this connection, I state and firther, in this connection, I state that those two members of council—there may be more than two—who are opposing the interests of the First ward and playing into the hands of the opponents of the people's interests, chiefly gentlemen living between Ninth and Tenth streets, are open to the charge of permitting their personal interest in property on Market street or the National road, or both, to influence their action in council to the extent of injuring all the people's interests of the ing all the people's interests of the ward, with the fallacious idea that by this means they will increase the value of their heldings through what may follow their population; or else they are so obtuse that they cannot see the value of two tracks to the people of the ward, and, indeed, of the whole city. They can take either horn of this dilemma they choose, and they will stand before the public as designedly or ignorantly misrepresenting the interests of the people they were sent to sub-norantly misrepresenting the interests of the people they were sent to subserve; and no man persisting in this should have the support of the people, which is all probability will be apparent to them in the future.

It is not to be regarded as remarkable that a man in the ordinary walks of life should allow his personal interests to influence or bias his opinion on any question even of public import, but it becomes a subject of vory serious criticism when a man elected to a representative position allows his private interests to influence or control his public actions.

As to this company being a foreign corporation, this is an argument only used as a last resort. It may be termed a buraboo, and nothing shows plainer the weakness of a cause than its use; and why, I might ask, permit the new iron bridge to be built? Why grant privileges to the Whoeling Bridge and Terminal company? Why show favors of like character to any railroad company, if this is an objection? Don't let us refuse a good thing becaused offered by a so-called foreign company—though in truth it is not such. The company in effering to build an additional track on Main street, stands in the position of a benefactor to the town, especially As to this company being a foreign of a benefactor to the town, especially to the First ward, and the people ought to jump at the boon offered them. The quicker the people rid themselves of the quicker the people rid themselves of the idea that the company can be induced or forced to take Market street for their line, the secone will they open their eyes to the value of what is offered them. They can depend upon it that before this company occupies Market street for a track they will furnish a job for "Old Mortality."

If a vote on this question is to be taken, let it be confined to Main street people, who, as supposed, will be the sufferers, a line up Market street not being in question at all; or else embrace the whole city, the entire people being inferested.

The city council, however, is the being interested.

The city council, however, is the tribunal to determine as to the grant, that body having been elected to determine this and like questions. Were it not so, we would have need of an election in some quarter each month.

The plain duty of council is to grant the right asked by the company, then pave Market street with brick. This would confer on the North End people lust what they want—good street car service and a splendid street for driving to reach the main highway east. This service and a splendid street for driving to reach the main highway east. This ought to satisfy all. I think the men at the head of the street railway company are business men. I have every reason to believe this. Being such, they will never accept a proposition such as has been tendered by council. This may be concluded as settled; and you will further find that the people who now look upon the grant as conferring a lavor on the railway company will begin are long to regard the lavor as being conferred on them. The company can therefore maintain a policy of masterly inactivity, while the people of the First ward will be settling in their own minds who is being hurt-or hunting for the man that struck Billy Pat-own minds who is being hurt—or hunting for the man that struck Billy Patterson.

The question is asked in a morning paper of Thursday hast how many cars would go round the North End loon—all, or two-thirds, or one-half? Thut question might be answered that the North End is on a switch, which appears to have been made necessary some years ago by the opposition of the North End people to two tracks. We are on a switch, we feel its castigation every day, and are humiliated thereby; and the chauces are that we will continue to be on one. Hence it is hardly to be expected that all the cars will run to that end.

How much the present opposition may influence the action of the company remains to be seen. A directory is very human. The probability is that the position of the people will not be improved by it. I believe that it would be safe to state that just as many cars would be run as would afford good accommodation and speedy transit for the travel offered, and the First ward people wouldn't want any more.

The people of the North End are appealed to: don't let this opportunity of securing good street car service pass. If it is done, you will regret it more and more as time passes. You will then be convinced, when too late, perhaps, that you have made a great mistake, as one off the town will be placed at a great disadvantage in the race for improvements, addition to population and increase of the value of property. Don't make a dead end of it, as you certainly will do if you do not avail your selves of the advantages now offered you. This appeal is made by one having property at stake, and no interest whatever in the railway company. Give the question your serious consideration, as your interests are at stake.

Don't grasp at the unattainable: se-Give the question your serious consideration, as your interests are at stake.

THEY WERE AFTER EATABLES A Moundsville Trio Hook Mules to Ride Into the Country to Steal Meat.

Saturday night, or rather Sunday morning, the smoke-house of A. T. Warner, who lives out the Waynesburg road, about two miles from Moundsville, was broken into and five large hams and a quantity of other meat hams and a quantity of other meat stolen. Mr. Warner came to Mounds-ville Sunday evening and laid the mat-ter before Marshal Rodocker. It was soon learned that the mule stable at the Moundsville coal shaft had been broken open, and some of the animats had evidently been used. A search warrant was obtained and the marshal called at a house in the Third ward, where two colored men live. Of course, they knew nothing at first when queswhere two colored men live. Of course, they knew nothing at first when questioned, but the marshal was not to be put off so easily. He searched among the clothes hanging on the wall and found a pair of pants liberally covered with mule hairs and ham grease, and the colored men weakened and consented to go with the officer.

With this opening made the whole story was soon learned. Two white men, named Ben Shimp and Charles Davis, and the two colored men, whose names are George McPherson and Riley Geoters, were drinking and playing cards at the dwelling of the latter until a late hour Saturday night—Geeters says it was about three o'clock Sanday morning when Shimp, Davis and McPherson secured three mules from the coal company's stable and started out to forage, and that it was almost daylight when they returned.

The hams were found at the hut and the rest of the meat at the mule barn, hidden away.

Why the men should steal is a mystery, as neither of them makes less than two dollars a day, and all are regularly employed. Many are inclined to regard it as a drunken lark.

Adams School Commencement.

The Bethlehem or Adams school, in Ritchie district, near this city, closed last Friday. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather the patrons and friends to the number of seventy or eighty gathered at the school house. In the early part of the afternoon the pupils gave an outertainment, consisting of recitations and dialogues, interspersed with singing, after which the children received their usual treat. Then an hour was spent socially, during which all in the house were served with confectionery, fruit and cake. At the close a gentleman arcse and in behalf of the patrons and friends prothe close a gentleman arose and in behalf of the patrons and frionds presented the teacher, Miss Meda R. White, with several useful presents, worth some ten or eleven dellars.

Miss White was taken so completely by surprise that she could make use of but very few words in reply, but they were the promptings of a very grateful heart, as she looked upon the gifts as an expression of appreciation of her services in the school, and as such, they are worth to her ten-fold their value in dollars and cents.
